This is a marvellous piece of educational software. I am a certified construction engineer now. (Recommended for couch coop (but it's FFA in reality - may the strongest warthog win)). Yes i love this game, Grab a friend IRL, set them down by the computer and lett them help you solve the puzzles. Its still quite early acces but that only means there will be more maps in the future!

I happily recomend this to anyone who got a person IRL sitting next to you bored, while you are in VR.. Risking premature judgement, I'll say after only 20 minutes of playing that this game is bloody awesome. It's a tough puzzle platformer, taking the player back to the times when it wasn't a crime if you had to practice a scene before completing it. The visuals and the music are OK, but in a game like this, the controls are everything. Now, I'm the guy who \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665es about controls in four out of five platformer reviews, but I can't find any flaw with these ones - they're snappy, consistent and well designed. Also, I see people complaining about the lack of ability to change controls - you can't change them in-game, but you can do that on the Unity launch screen, just select the 'input' tab.

All in all, Eron is a tough and brilliant game, and I applaud its creators. It's no casual game, so it's definitely not for everyone, but I can recommend it to anyone who likes a challenge and doesn't mind his\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665whipped every once on a while :)

Update: I got to the last level, and my initial impression fully holds. This game is a gem.. cool game!! 4 player too much fun!!. Build stuff to wreck someone else's stuff before they get enough stuff to build stuff to wreck your stuff.

Did I mention wrecking stuff?
